collective

I would personally like to thank you Karen for your contribution in the role of Interim Director of Employer Services whilst at Education Training Collective. Your collaborative approach, delivered at pace, positively impacting stakeholder engagement and cross-group communication. A number of staff, at all levels, including myself, well, mostly myself, benefitting from your knowledge and experience. It has been a pleasure to work with you.

Chris has been instrumental in driving a flourishing partnership between Roehampton and CCG, taking the lead on a multitude of strands of activities, facilitating collaboration between a diverse range of colleagues in both organisations, and also in creating a framework that has driven innovation

Liam Hurley
Director of Strategy & External Relations
University of Roehampton

"Indy has a skill set that I don't come across very often. He is incredibly personable with a great sense of humour, he has an excellent range of abilities in using data, often creating his own to evidence changes as well as strong people skills with the aim that learners have a really positive experience. He has been working at the college since September 2022, managing its biggest vocational curriculum area and has moved it into a really good place.

You can trust him to manage challenging situations and find ways to resolve complex issues. He has been involved in moving his area to a brand-new college building mid-year whilst ensuring retention and achievement are on track and ensuring that the curriculum is fully functioning. He is well thought of in the college, with colleagues often seeking his advice and support. I am pleased he will be with us again next year."

Once again, thank you to FE Associates for sourcing another high-quality interim manager. Richard joined us to review our Apprenticeship and wider employer responsive curriculum and the quality of our offer. He was given a very clear and challenging brief with a tight turnaround time to deliver. He fully understood the role, had experience and knowledge aligned to it, embraced the challenge, and rapidly gained the trust and respect of colleagues across different departments to deliver over and above what was expected. His background and knowledge were perfectly matched, regular updates were insightful and allowed for shared agreement on the next steps and he gave honest, informed, and constructive suggestions for continual improvement. We have now decided to model a permanent role based on the work that Richard did with us, and he has left us with a very clear plan for the next phase of this work.
